

-Off duty— Who's afraid?

The Frankfurt Playhouse has been entertaining people in this area for 35 years as the oldest English speaking theater in Germany.

In September the playhouse will present, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" This suspenseful, revealing drama takes you into the lives of two bitterly unhappy people trapped in a unhappy marriage. "The suspense," playhouse officials say, "is so great you'll be on the edge of your seat and completely torn by the emotion portrayed on stage."

Play dates are September 17, 18, 24 and 25. Children will not be admitted to these performances due to language and adult subject matter.

Jazz, ballet and... belly

Beginning in September the Frankfurt Playhouse, 152 Hansa Allee, will offer workshops in Jazz dance, ballet and belly dancing. For information call 2311-5835.

USO activities in Sept

Even though most soldiers are in the field, family members are encouraged to get out and take advantage of the USO activities.

Skiing in Europe is fun but very expensive - Wrong!

If you like to ski, the Armed Forces Recreation Center (AFRC) at Berchtesgaden is for you. Besides being located in a great skiing area, the military will also give you a good deal money-wise.

"I don't think any organization can match our services and prices," said Gary Colston, AFRC Berchtesgaden Recreation Services Officer. "Where else can you get lift tickets and transportation for a five day, five area trip with a buffet, banquet, Bavarian Show, special pin and mug as well as qualified ski guides - all for $90, not including food and lodging?"

If you are interested in more information call the AFRC at 2535-677.
